TEUSDAY MORNING, : : : : WAY 16, 1871

The reason Southern people do not led a life of perfect commercial bought his supplies, and began another year of social and business independces and adopting his modes of thinkhe surveyed," never dreaming of business relations, or of co-operative action with the people about him. On the contrary, in Northern communities, there is no task, however great, when individuals may be incapable, known, the execution of the purpose approved by all, is left to be performed pre-eminently so in Shelby county, by the few. If we would induce Ger. for our people of all classes, color mans and Frenchmen to seek homes the ability, impartiality and efficiency tion defined in another place will of our Judges and Chancellors. surely achieve the desideratum. But who believes that Southern farmers can be induced to accomplish through associated action certain success, when Individual effort will prove worse than abortive? However, it is time that promoted, and has discovered in most we had learned something; that we tleman, hoping to secure offices, have ING we had learned something; that we had adopted lessons of practical wisdom taught by the conduct and fortunes of people who have never acquired habits of personal independence psculiar to life-long citizens of the South. Read the proposition in another place having reference to the coming planters convention.

Instances, that a lew distinguished gentlemed, have distinguished gentlemed of secure offices, have given birth to the ill-omened corporations. About five or six expect the sheriff's place, a dozen or two affect clerkships and eight or ten distinguished gentlemen, in each civil district, would win high judicial honors on the county court woolsack.

Chanceller Footness may not be guided.

Flippin, Judge of the Criminal Court, adjourned his tribunal two weeks ago, a disconsolate backelor; but he opened it yesterday a model benedict, looking as fresh as a breeze from Araby. He has passed through the ordeal like a hero, and from the manner in which he commenced business, love seems to have had no other effect than to to have had no other effect than to open the sweetest treasures of his heart. Copid still has him in leading-strings, and we are not surprised that criminals are anxious to be tried before a judge who is so enamored with his beautiful world, that he would not hurt Uncle Toby's fly. In other sections there is strong opposition to an elective judiciary, but the people of Shelby county have abundant cause to congratuate themselves that they are permitted to elect their own judiciary. Indeed we cannot seed on the Supreme Court, he will take such action that a definite decision may be rendered by the tribunal of last resort.

This is the outline of an interlocutory for the country, not for the purpose of securing office, but with the supreme court cannot supersede it and the Chancellor says, since both Payette and Bell counties are entitled to an immediate and final decision at the hands of the Supreme Court, he will take such action that a definite decision may be rendered by the tribunal of last resort.

Fortunately, the tendency of the public mind is strongly against such aburdities. One great objection made against our elective judiciary is, that the judges are elected by political parties, and that they will be liable to be swayed in their judgements by partiman feeling. If we admit this danger, we do not except from it by concentrating the power in the Executive or the Legislature. Every Executive and every Legislature are elected which overtakes a party that is false to a political party. They select the party is from their own party.
